The major focus of the group is re-building a

Recovery Dialogues

Recovery Dialogue groups start out with a topic of discussion and, therefore, are not considered the same as support groups, mutual support groups or self-help groups, because of the way group dialogues and interactions are handled. When a topic is discussed in a Recovery Dialogue Group, group participants are discussing and focusing on something other than themselves; a particular topic. Participants are encouraged to learn and draw from what they have already learned or what they have inside them.

Recovery Dialogue facilitators do not teach, but they listen and ask questions that help group participants explore their own answers as to what will work best for them.

The ultimate goal when Recovery Dialogues are used is to help people with a mental illness/psychiatric diagnosis understand and realize that there are things each person can do to help themselves get the life they want, thus helping them further their walk along their recovery journey.

Getting Started:

"The best day

of your life
is the one on which you decide your life
is your own.

No apologies or excuses, No one to lean on, rely on,
or blame.

The gift is yours -
It is an amazing
Journey -

and you alone
are responsible for the quality of it. "
