If your business generates hazardous waste, you must obtain a hazardous waste generator license.

Evaluate your waste

To decide if your business produces hazardous waste, you should:

1. Gather information about the wastes your business produces. Talk to purchasing, production and maintenance personnel, tour production and non-production areas, inspect storage areas and dumpsters. Don't forget to include sewer and recycled wastes.
2. Evaluate waste. The evaluation process includes checking to see if any of the wastes are exempt from the hazardous waste rules, listed in the hazardous waste rules or display any hazardous characteristics. You may need to have the waste tested.

Common wastes by industry

Below is a listing of wastes commonly generated by certain industries and processes. This list does not describe all wastes that may be generated or regulated.

- Building maintenance: Paints, thinners, solvents, cleaners, PCBs
- General repair: Solvents, paints, acids, bases, adhesives, oils
- Laboratory: Reagents, wash-up, reacted chemicals, dated chemicals
- Metal fabrication: Solvents, sludges, cleaners, paints, acids, caustics
- Plating: Sludges, cleaners, acids, caustics, cyanides
- Vehicle maintenance, service and repair: Oils, filters, solvents, paints, thinners

Universal wastes

Universal wastes are subject to streamlined hazardous waste regulations designed to facilitate environmentally sound collection and increase proper recycling or treatment. Universal waste management does not require use of a manifest or a licensed transporter to transport the waste to a permitted treatment, storage or disposal facility. Management of universal waste allows facilities that meet "universal waste handler" requirements to accumulate these wastes without a full hazardous waste storage permit. Universal wastes as defined in Pennsylvania, include the following hazardous wastes: batteries, pesticides, Mercury-containing equipment, lamps, aerosols, oil-based finishes, photographic solutions.

General hazardous waste management
